

John

Hasznosi

<https://noctiscreo.github.io/>

Bath, United Kingdom

Phone #: 07761 846162

John.Hasznosi.Dev

@gmail.com

I was an ESL teacher for over 20 years, and while the teaching itself was great, the roles were seasonal or temporary and there was virtually no progression. I decided to leave teaching behind to pursue a career in software development, and enrolled in Mayden Academy's Full Stack coding bootcamp.

At Mayden Academy I started coding my own websites and apps from the first day right through until the end of the course. It was very intensive, and we covered so much material in those four months that it would have taken me years to cover the same amount at home trying to teach myself.

Skills

On the Mayden Academy bootcamp I learned the fundamentals of web development as well as Javascript, PHP, and software best practices. I worked on several projects both individually and as part of a team. I have created apps and websites from scratch, and have also worked with legacy code. I took part in various stages of software development, from scrum planning (I'm a certified scrum master) right through to final code reviews and bug fixes.

Projects

As part of a team I worked on this Javascript based aptitude test. We worked on legacy code consuming an existing API using TypeScript. We also used Bootstrap and Gulp to run the TypeScript, Babel, and SASS compilers.

<https://github.com/Mayden-Academy/aptitude-test>

I worked on this recipe app as part of another team, and did most of the front end of the landing page. We used SASS, Bootstrap and TypeScript, and as with all of our projects we did all our code reviews using GitHub.

<http://dev.maydenacademy.co.uk/projects/2019Aug/2019-aug-bread-and-ift/app/>

Work History

EAP Teaching Fellow / University of Birmingham, UK

August 2017 - September 2019

For the past three years I have worked during each summer at the UoB teaching foreign students of English (ESL is often seasonal work).

English Teacher / Jungmun Elementary School, South Korea

November 2018 - August 2019

For the past 20 years, I have been an ESL teacher to foreign students in various schools across Canada, Japan, South Korea and the UK.

Education

Fullstack Track / Mayden Academy - 2019

Creative Writing (Master's Degree) / Lancaster University - 2020

Psychology (Bachelor's Degree) / University of British Columbia - 2000

Screenwriting (Diploma) / Vancouver Film School - 2000